

and wine, grapes and fruit such as the Children of Israel had never seen. You may imagine how happy the weary travelers were—how glad they were to meet up with such kind people. Then out from their village came the Hittites with musical instruments and dancing girls—and somebody bore on their shoulders a Golden Calf at which the Children of Israel stared in astonishment. And when their new friends began dancing and singing around the Golden Calf the Children of Israel joined right in and soon everybody was dancing and singing together. And just then Moses came down from the mountain!

He didn't come all the way down and he didn't ask any questions, he just blew up with rage. He hurled down the tablets upon which he had written the Ten Commandments, breaking them into many pieces; he shouted and consigned all the people to perdition. The Hittites were confounded to see and hear the Old Man. The Children of Israel, who had had their first good meal, with cool wine in many a day, were embarrassed before their new friends. And they were dumb before old Moses' wrath.

And then God spoke and he said:

"Moses, how dare you break the tablets with those Commandments for my people! How dare you shout at them like this!"

"But God," said Moses, "don't you see what these wicked, ungrateful people are doing. They are all drunk with wine. They worship a Golden Calf. They have broken all the Commandments."

"How can the people break Commandments before they have them," inquired God. "I can see the people and I will judge them. I did not tell you to judge them. For this wrong thing that you do, you Moses shall never enter the Promised Land!"

At these words Moses was stricken with grief. And God spoke gently:

"All right, Moses, you have been a faithful servant. Come back up to the mountain top and I will once more give you the Commandments. And you will teach them to my People. And finally you shall lead them to Canaan, and I shall take you to a high place, where you will be able to look into the Promised Land—but you may never enter it."

 Poor Moses! A severe punishment for hasty judgment, arrogance and impatient anger. Let us ponder on Moses' predicament. Our times are far more crucial. For imperialism is employing every device to deceive, to trap, to divide us one from the other. Imperialism, with its exploitation, oppression and aggression is a badly wounded Beast—while Humanity is rising in strength throughout the world. Open your eyes and see. Being ignorant will not save you, and standing alone leaves you naked and defenseless. That old Spiritual . . .

*Walk together, chillun
 Don't you get weary*

has more meaning now than ever before.

LIFT UP YOUR heads and look beyond narrow confines! We, the people, have much cause to rejoice. Black people have cause to celebrate; the Third World, the World of Color, no longer slumbers. Everywhere there is movement, everywhere is the sound of marching feet—coming on—coming on!

*Stony the road we have trod
 Bitter the chastening rod Felt in the days when hope unborn had died;*

*Yet with a steady beat,
 Have not our weary feet
 Come to the place for which our fathers
 sighed;*

*We have come over a way that with tears
 has been watered;
 We have come treading our path through the blood of the slaughtered,*

*Out from the gloomy past,
 Will now we stand at last
 Where the white gleam of our bright star is cast.*

And from the hut deep in the Congo jungle were smuggled the last words of Patrice Lumumba:

*The Dawn is here, My brothers! Dawn!
 A new morning breaks in old Africa
 Lift up your eyes
 And see!*

REC-57

Ideology Dispute Shakes Black Journal

By CHARLAYNE HUNTER

The Black Scholar, which has provided a forum for the growing ideological debate among blacks over Marxism-Leninism and nationalism, has become enmeshed in the conflict.

Nathan Hare, a founder and publisher of the black journal of social, economic and political thought, has severed his connections with the magazine by protesting what he called a "black Marxist" take-over of the journal. The remaining staff denied the accusation, called it "red-baiting" and contending that the majority of the contributing and advisory board were not Marxist.

The Black Scholar was founded in 1969, when the black movement was in flux. Dr. Hare said the magazine was designed to unite the black intellectual "in his ebony tower" with the street activists in an attempt to evolve "a new and viable black ideology."

Cross-Section of Blacks

Its board—assembled by Dr. Hare and Robert Chrisman, the editor—was a cross-section of the black community and included politicians, educators, scholars, activists, businessmen and entertainers. Among them were Representative Shirley Chisholm of Brooklyn, Imamu Baraka, Angela Davis, Dempsey Travis, Max Roach, John Oliver Killens, Ossie Davis, Shirley Graham Dubois, Ron Karenga and Lerone Bennett.

The magazine published articles by many of its board members, along with articles by Eldridge Cleaver, Sekou Toure, John Conyers and John Henrik Clark, while also providing a forum for young scholars and activists, such as Joyce Ladner and Don L. Lee.

Some of the contributing and advisory editors said that, because of Dr. Hare's resignations, they were reconsidering their own involvement with the magazine. At least one has already resigned, and even those who still support the current staff say they view the situation with some "dis-may."

In his "open letter" dated Feb. 26, Dr. Hare wrote:

"The Black Scholar, under the umbrella of the Black World Foundation, was incorporated as a nonprofit organization with bylaws and a board of directors, with all policy decisions to be made by majority vote of the board members."

Letter by Hare

"That was supposed to be in the spirit of revolution, but it was my first mistake. That majority is now black Marxist, and I soon found my contribution sabotaged and almost liquidated."

Dr. Hare, a sociologist whose black militancy led to his dismissal from Howard University in 1967 and San Francisco State College in 1969, accused the board of "a narrow devotion to conventional Marxist interpretations and an iron-clad intolerance for and resistance to opposing views."

In a telephone interview from San Francisco, where he is working on a Ph. D. in clinical psychology, Dr. Hare said the change began two years ago, when Mr. Chrisman and Robert Allen, the magazine's managing editor, went to Cuba.

"They were mesmerized by Cuba," Dr. Hare said. "It was like a utopia. Race had no meaning, they thought, although other people contradicted that. But you could not criticize Russia or Cuba or Angela Davis after that."

No 'New Thought'

"More and more articles were solicited from the black Marxist League and Community party circles," Dr. Hare continued. "When I protested that not enough black nationalists were getting into the debate, they tried to put out the idea that nationalists didn't have any new thoughts and I felt that way about the Marxists."

Dr. Hare accuses both the Marxists and the nationalists of being "too narrow—more like religion than struggle."

Mr. Chrisman, who has co-authored two books with Dr. Hare and is a visiting professor of ethnic studies at the University of San Francisco, said Dr. Hare's resignation had taken the staff "completely by surprise." He also contended that Dr. Hare had sent the staff a different, less strident letter and that the charges in the open letter were "basically a fabrication."

"The great majority of our contributing editors are not Marxist," Mr. Chrisman said. "This is just old-fashioned red-baiting and smearing."

A Constructive Step

Meanwhile, many blacks feel the incident has served to heighten the debate between the ideologues. Some regard it as a constructive step toward the creation of a universally accepted strategy for black liberation. Others are concerned about the impact it will have on the magazine.

"To me, Nathan Hare was The Black Scholar," said one contributing editor, whose statement and request for anonymity was shared by several others. "I'm going to resign but quietly."

Charles V. Hamilton, professor of political science at Columbia University, said that he had resigned partly in support of Dr. Hare's position, as well as to allow the staff to choose its own people.

But Gerald McWorter, also known as Abdul Alkalimat, head of the department of Afro-American studies at Fisk University, said that, while he felt that the magazine was "an accurate reflection of where black young people are today," he also thought that it was "important to keep The Black Scholar as a united front kind of publication."

The differences that have existed and developed over a period of time are obvious," he added. "It's the struggle for correct ideas that gets to correct ideas."

Four copies of this issue of the magazine are enclosed for FBIHQ and one copy is being retained.

Two copies of an article entitled "The Role of Social Work in Black Liberation" by GWENDOLYN S. GILBERT is being sent to the Bureau and Cincinnati because the author of this article displays a knowledge of militant black extremism.

Congressman JOHN CONYERS, JR., article beginning on page 32 entitled, "The United States Growing Support for Racism in South Africa" does not appear to set forth revolutionary or extremist material.

The publication of the so called "Secret U.S. Plan for South Africa" beginning on page 39, which is alleged to be excerpts from secret U.S. memo (NSSM 39) is apparently a repetition of previously published information appearing in "Esquire" by TAD SZULC in October, 1974, and has been referred to by syndicated columnist JACK ANDERSON also in October, 1974. This memo does not appear to contain startling revelations. No copies being submitted.

Remylet, 10/25/74.

The September, 1974, issue of "The Black Scholar" (TBS), Volume 6, Number 1, was received 10/25/74. This magazine is published by the Black World Foundation (BWF), a charitable corporation, 2658 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California. This issue features "Black Education - The Future of Black Studies".

Four copies of this issue of the magazine are enclosed for the Bureau. One copy is being retained at San Francisco.

Two xeroxed copies of the article beginning on page 38 are being sent to the Bureau because of possible interest in the People's College. The article is entitled "A Study Program - Imperialism and Black Liberation", by People's College.

Two copies of the article are being sent to Memphis because GERALD MC WORTER, aka Abdul Alkalimat of P.O. Box 5747, Nashville, Tennessee, is identified as a founder and leading member of People's College.

One copy of this same article is being sent to Houston because of the coverage of the African Liberation Support Committee (ALSC) activities and the agreement of philosophy between ALCS and the People's College.

For the information of Memphis, the following characterization is set forth:

Re San Francisco letter to the Bureau dated 7/12/74,
captioned "'The Black Scholar' (TBS)."

Referenced letter forwarded to Pittsburgh a copy of an article appearing in the April, 1974, issue of "The Black Scholar," which article was titled "Africa: Challenge of the Unfinished Revolution," by LADUN ANISE. The article identifies ANISE as a Nigerian who is Assistant Professor of Political Science and African Studies at the University of Pittsburgh. He is further identified as the Editor of a special issue of the black studies journal, "Black Lines," devoted to the topic, "Black Liberation Strategies Revisited."

Pittsburgh files indicate that FOIA(b)7 - (D) who has furnished reliable information in the past, advised on 6/14/73, that one Dr. ANISE from Nigeria, a teacher at the University of Pittsburgh, was a speaker at a meeting held on 5/23/73, and sponsored by the Pittsburgh Branch of the Congress of African People (CAP), which was held in honor of African Liberation Day, 1973. For the information of the Bureau, all African Liberation Day activities in 1973 were under the sponsorship of the Pittsburgh Branch of the CAP.
The main speaker at the above meeting on 5/23/73, according to FOIA(b)7 - (D) was JITU WEUSI, aka., Les Campbell, a member of the National CAP Executive Committee.

As set out above, the subject was Editor of a special issue of the black studies journal, "Black Lines." Information concerning this publication was furnished to the Bureau by Pittsburgh letter dated 6/7/73, captioned, "African Liberation Support Committee (ALSC)." A copy of the Spring, 1971 issue of the publication "Black Lines" was furnished to the Bureau with this letter and "Black Lines" was described as a publication of the Department of Black Studies at the University of Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh indices contain no further information concerning the subject.

On 8/9/74, FOIA(b)7 - (D) advised he had no further information concerning the subject and that ANISE was not known to be involved in any black extremist activities.

The following informants were contacted concerning the subject during August, 1974, and advised he was unknown to them:

FOIA(b)7 - (D)

Information available concerning the subject does not indicate he has violated, or is engaged in activities which may result in a violation of any Federal statute, and therefore no investigation is being conducted concerning him. This matter will be followed during regular contacts with extremist informants and in the event any information is received which indicates an investigation should be conducted concerning the subject, appropriate Bureau authority will be obtained and such investigation will then be conducted.

Page 43 features an article entitled "The National Question: A Marxist Critique", by M. FRANK WRIGHT. The article is on aspects of Marxist-Leninist theory dealing with the phenomena of nations and nationalities in class societies. The author sets forth that there are weaknesses in the traditional application of this doctrine. It claims that racism serves to keep the oppressed classes pitted against themselves to benefit the bourgeoisie. The author purposes a "socialist equalization policy" which would give preferred treatment until the white skin privileges are wiped out. 4

The author shows himself as a self-professed student on Marxist-Leninist philosophy and is suggesting further refinement of the national question.
